Perilous Adventures on Stormy Seas and Finally Meets a Landlubber's Fate in Maine.

in mature years he saved people from drowning. Once when in his teens he fall from a hay mow and was taken up for dead. Another time he was struck by lightning and remained paralyzed. He shipped on the wrecked on a coral reef in the South Paific. In a little schooner of 150 tons burcific. In a little schooner of 150 tons bur-den on the Cannibal Islands from the tim-bers of a wrecked ship, the captain accom-panied by Jackson and the first officer, left to obtain suitable provisions with which to return to the islands, where the captain's sick daughter and husband were left to await them. On the second day out the captain was stricken with paralysis and Jackson was given command and made navigator of the vessel to Jalint, one of the islands of the Marshall group, where pro-visions were obtained from white cut-throats who held the schooner for throats who held the schooner for security. After many perilous adventures Jackson arrived alone at Ulae with relief for those left behind, only to find a letter from Capt. Morrison announcing the arrival of a United States war ship and the rescue of himself and party. This letter Jackson read to the King of Ujae, as stating that the king must reat Jackson well or that the war ship would return and bombard the island. Jackson thus saved his life. The king, who was anxious to go to an adjacent island for some savage festival, made the Bath boy temporarily king of the island. For thirty days Jackson, king of Ujae, held his ione court on the island beach, guarding the provisions and hoping aid would come. The crew of the white wreckers arrived, and to them Jackson sold for about eight hundred dollars the rest of the cargo and wreck and with them sold for about eight hundred dollars the rest of the cargo and wreck and with them returned to Jalint, whence he worked his way to San Francisco, where he delivered his hard-earned $800 to the owners' agent and was rewarded with $75 for his endeavors. After being washed overboard in rounding the cape, he for two years sailed to the Northern seas and was noted for feats of daring. Then he became a steamboat man, rose to be third officer of the "City of Peking," one of the largest steamers afloat, and was steadily mounting up when he was knocked down by a runaway horse while ashore on vacation and killed. He was only 30 years old. The fact that he met a land-lubber's fate after so many thrilling adventures on fate after so many thrilling adventures on the seas, makes death a doubly bitter dis-appointment to his seafaring relatives and friends.

Their names are taken, but nine out of ten are fictitious. Capt. Woodson and Lieut. Carson are in receipt of telegrams daily to hire horses, have them saddled and bridled, and in waiting on the arrival of trains at Oklahoma City on April 22, at noon. The object is to mount at once and by fleet steeds distance their rival Boomers on foot and capture the choice claims. A party of four Hoosiers with a balloon are camped near Antelope hill. They will make an ascent in the morning, drift in mid-air till noon, and then descend an hour in sdvance of teams of speedy horses. The state officials anticipate trouble and say the country will be an El Dorado for good land office lawyers. The excitement is increasing daily and all southern Kansas is ablaze. The assessors think Oklahoma is not what it has been painted. The soil is red and the land is good chiefly for hay and cottor. Oklahoma was surveyed some years ago, but the corners are nearly all obliterated now. The settlers staking claims will find it difficult to describe the same when they ma City on April 22, at noon. The it difficult to describe the same when they go to the land office to make a filing. And go to the land office to make a filing. And this will give rise to innumerable contests, and more will grow out of the filings by boomers who stayed in the country against the president's orders, and will come out of the timber April 22 and file anyhow. The contests settled at first by Winchesters will afterwards have to be settled again in the courts. The outlook for the country and the boomers is not promising, by any means.

HOME TESTIMONY.

HELENA, Oct. 7, 1887.

I was suffering from an unusually bad cough, my lungs were sore and congested, and I consulted one of the best physicians in Helena, whose prescriptions failed to relieve me. I became alarmed, and at the suggestion of a friend purchased a bottle of Acker's English Remedy for coughs, and after taking it according to directions was completely cured. I therefore cheerfully recommend it.

I had a racking cough and inflamed throat and bought a bottle of Acker's English Remedy upon the recommendation of a friend, and was entirely cured by it. I consider it a never failing remedy for a cough.
